Latin Americanist Microform Sets
Held at the Harvard College Library

Preliminary listing, January 2002
Updated August 2015

Harvard holds many Latin Americanist microform sets that may be hard to find through ordinary searches of Hollis, the library’s online catalog. Some large microfilm collections are only represented by an artificial title for the complete set, without separate catalog records for individual holdings. Many catalog entries are obscure. And some listings for different sets of similar materials are confusingly diverse. In all three cases, it’s easy to overlook what we have.

This list is organized by country or region. The entries under “Latin America (General)” subsume collections with holdings that cut across many countries. Most entries reflect the collection title as found in the catalog record on Hollis, though the author is listed first when the title alone would be confusing. Where the Hollis record cites an author as well as the title, and our guide uses the title, the author is indicated in parentheses. The author and/or collection name is followed by the Hollis number [in brackets], the Harvard call number, and the number of reels or fiche held locally. Most microfilm holdings are available through the Government Documents/Microform Division, located in Lamont Library. Most of our microfilm collections are accompanied by printed guides to their contents, and/or holdings lists at the beginning of each collection or reel. Harvard’s on-site microfilm holdings are complemented by sets held by the Center for Research Libraries and by the Latin American Microform Project. These materials, however, are not included in this list.

Harvard’s microform holdings continue to grow, so this list will always be a work in progress. Comments and inquiries should be directed to Widener’s Librarian for Latin America, Spain, and Portugal (617-495-2427).
